EXAMPLE shop: 5 brands (fictional, for illustration)

19 items supplied by the example shop (brand, model, size, condition). Per item: BUY / WATCH / SKIP, the maximum price to pay, and the typical asking range on the Vinted markets we cover. Items we cannot price say so.

13/19	1	12	0	6
items with a real verdict	BUY	WATCH	SKIP	not enough data

What to push

- Adidas Samba: pay up to EUR 21, typical ask EUR 30-40

BUY means the max price leaves room against the typical ask and the model moves. Confidence is MEDIUM, never certain.

Buy only at or below the max price

- Carhartt Detroit jacket: max EUR 68 (ask EUR 58-125)
- Carhartt Active jacket: max EUR 64 (ask EUR 56-120)

12 items are WATCH: fine at the right price, no strong signal either way.

Where the room is thin

- Max price is EUR 15 or less on: Levi's 505 jeans (max EUR 15), Nike Air Force 1 (max EUR 14), Ralph Lauren Polo shirt (max EUR 13). If your cost is above it, reprice, bundle, or skip the next lot.

No item got SKIP in this list. 6 items have no verdict: nothing is guessed for them (see page 3).

Read this first

- EXAMPLE: the shop and its list are fictional (5 brands, 19 typical items). The numbers are a real run on our live data from 4 Oct 2026.
- Prices are what listings ask on Vinted today, plus when listings leave the shelf. They are not confirmed sale prices.
- Markets covered today: Vinted France, Germany, Spain, Italy and Portugal. Brands and models outside our tracked set get "not enough data", never a guess.

FR/DE/ES/IT/PT columns: median asking price (EUR) of live listings in that market; "-" = too few listings there to give a median. "Typical ask" is the 25th to 75th percentile across markets. Confidence LOW/MED reflects how much data stands behind the call.

How to read this, and what we could not price

13 of 19 items got a verdict. 6 did not. Where the data is too thin or the model is not in our tracked set, we say "not enough data" and give no number. Those 6 items: Carhartt Carpenter pants; Nike Tech Fleece hoodie; Nike Vintage swoosh sweatshirt; Adidas Vintage track pants; Ralph Lauren Cable knit sweater; Ralph Lauren Harrington jacket.

Method and limits

- We watch Vinted listings in 5 markets (FR, DE, ES, IT, PT) and when listings leave the shelf. "Typical ask" is what listings ask today, not a confirmed sale price.
- Max price to pay = the ceiling at which a flip to the typical ask still leaves a 30% margin before your own costs (shipping, fees, time). It is a ceiling, not a target.
- Verdicts are per model, not per garment: size and condition are not priced yet. Adjust the max price down for Fair condition or unusual sizes. 10 of 13 calls are LOW confidence; none is HIGH.
- Where our closest tracked match was a different brand or garment (where it applied), we discarded it instead of showing a wrong price.
- No profit is promised. Sourcing channel, shop costs and sell-through are yours to judge.
